

About the Author

Kim Kane has been in the educational field for the past 30 years and is currently a dean of students at a large suburban high school. Kim is also a 35-year national trainer/presenter on a variety of topics including; education, chemical dependency, stress reduction, mindfulness practices, and most recently on women, aging and living in gratitude.

Kim has entertained and informed women all around the country. Her mix of stories, both humorous and tender-hearted, help to create the sense that you are in her living room having a personal conversation over a cup of coffee. She has an ability to take an ordinary experience and create a story filled with extraordinary learning and moments that can be applied to everyday living.

Kim recently published her first book, 'Sparkle On...Women Aging in Gratitude'. This book represents her belief it is never too late to do and to be whatever it is you desire!
